MAJORITY FAVORS CEMENT AT M. B. MASS MEETING

Over three hundred people were present at the mass meeting called by the people of Mission Beach last Wednesday, March 17, and held in the Harris building, next to the post office. The meeting was called to order by the chairman, Judge Chambers, who called on Captain McNulty, chairman of committee on seawalls, to give a report on the last committee meeting. Captain McNulty remarked that this is a very extensive proposition, and that the committee, not being seawall men, should secure the advice of some authority on seawalls. He said that the plans presented are now in the office of the city engineer for consideration, and at another mass meeting a report can be made of actual cost and type most favorable. Judge Chambers then remarked that Manager Rhodes had given him a rough estimate of $21 per lot for wooden wall and $32 per lot for concrete wall, one-third more for concrete than wooden structure.

Wider Walk Advised

One of the men in the meeting exclaimed "Concrete or nothing!" Motion was carried that the meeting go on record as in favor of a concrete seawall. A stranger from Los Angeles then arose, voicing his opinion in favor of the concrete wall, saying he had spent his life in harbor work and that sheet piling construction is the most economical in the long run. He also advised a little wider walk while we are about it.

Piling Plan Presented

W. M. Butts, civil engineer for Fenton-Parker Material Co., presented what the people considered an excellent plan. Piles are driven 18 by 18 feet and 20 feet long, seven feet longer than Amusement Park piling, and are ten feet on center. This, he said, could be built for about $18 per lineal foot with side walk, but without inside wall or parapet. All visible parts to be gunited.

Continue Committee Work

John Campbell also presented a plan much like the above, to cost $21.40 per lineal foot, including eight-foot inside wall and 12-foot outside wall, piles 16 by 16 feet and 16 feet long. An 18-inch parapet would cost an additional 25c or 30c per foot and filling to cost $1 per yard. A motion was made that the present committee continue and consult with the city engineer and report at a committee meeting in one week's time.

Resignation Not Accepted

Captain McNulty stated that he wished to be excused from the chairmanship of the seawall committee, but would still remain on the committee and procure data from other beach towns on his trips. His reason for resigning, he said, was that he is occupying four men's jobs, also that his work often called him away. His resignation was not accepted.

MEETING OF THE COMMITTEE ON SEAWALL

The committee for the seawall held its meeting Monday, March 15, at the home of Harry K. Turner. All committeemen were present, also various contractors. The meeting was opened by Captain McNulty, chairman, who said that Fred Rhodes had made the statement that Mission Beach must have a seawall, and is now working on a type of construction. City Engineer Jorgensen does not know when it will be ready. Mr. Barclay, who built the Coronado pier and has had much experience in that work, gave an interesting talk. He could not as yet give a price on his plan. C. T. Custer, Paul Lincoln of the Intermountain Gunite and Construction Co. and Charles Engelbrecht presented plans of cement sea-walls, about which there was much discussion. No definite price was set, as the men they were figuring with were not all ready with their prices on materials. It was finally decided to submit plans to Manager Rhodes for his approval, one of wood and one or more of less concrete to be submitted at a later mass meeting.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE RESUMES MONTHLY MEETINGS

Meeting in the school house.

SOME NORTHERN SEA-

WALLS INVESTIGATED

Mr. and Mrs. Harry K. Turner and children took a flying trip north last Saturday and returned Sunday. Most of the beach towns from Seal Beach to Topanga Beach were damaged by the storm.

At Seal Beach there are two bulkheads, the outer of wood and twelve feet from the inner concrete seawall. The wooden one was not high enough and allowed the water to sweep over the top and crack the cement seawall, which was driven down only five feet below sand level, and toppled over in many places. The cement wall was all broken up, even where the wall was intact, from the water dashing over the wall, wetting and settling the sand under-

"SINISTER HOUSE"

A NEW STORY BY A LOCAL AUTHOR

Written for "The Beach News" by Maud M. Stuart

An intensely diverting tale has been written by Charles G. Booth, of the Craggs apartments, Ocean Beach, entitled "Sinister House," which is now appearing serially in the current number of the Mystery Magazine.

Its locale and setting claim our attention, since they are suggested by Ocean Beach itself, with Point Loma as a background. Particular interest centers around Sunset Cliffs. The rocks and caves of these renowned shores lend themselves well to mystery, and out of their weirdness has come from the pen of Mr. Booth an engaging story of adventure, tragedy and love.

William Morrow & Co., of New York, will publish this story in book form early in the fall, at which time it will be fully reviewed.

neath and thus allowing the walk to sink. So at Seal Beach was learned the lesson to do down deep enough—to rock, if possible, build it high enough, and make a wall on both sides of the walk to hold the sand from slipping and to brace the sidewalk.

At Topanga Beach, thirty houses and the bathhouse had toppled right into the ocean, and two men were drowned trying to rescue pipeline. There was no seawall here.

At Santa Monica the wall seemed in pretty good shape, but nothing could be learned about the construction of the wall, as the hour was getting late. However, we can write the chamber of commerce there for details.

At Long Beach, one portion of the wall was composed of solid concrete, not driven, and piling every six feet driven deeper into the sand. The water had washed the sand from under the wall of concrete, leaving the concrete piling showing below; the ocean had washed under the wall and left a space beneath. The steps at Long Beach went up one side of the wall and down the other, thus leaving the openings protected from an inrush of water, as the top step was almost as high as the wall itself.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

That publicity started in the Garden of Eden when God told Eve not to fool with that apple?

That the need of repeated and continuous publicity was proven a few days later when Eve forgot the instructions?

That, perhaps indignant over the fact that Eve didn't get a square deal from a publicity standpoint, her sex has developed to a science (not an exact science, however) the world's greatest publicity system?

That nature is just one demonstration of publicity after another? The roar of the thunder, the scent of the flowers, the colors of the rainbow, are God's publicity.

And did you ever stop to wonder why your Maker created every living, growing thing with some distinguishing feature of publicity? It was because it is a part of His scheme that each of His creations shall be distinguished from the others by some distinctive appearance, odor or noise. (That's where Henry Ford got his idea); and the man who invents the Paris gowns, he who in the same factory makes the ukulele and the harp; the trumpet and the saxophone.

Man didn't invent publicity, newspapers or advertising. Man imitated nature in these, as in all things, and he did it of necessity. Man cannot progress without them; perhaps he could not even live. The fellow who sweeps the streets is as much dependent upon what newspapers create in the world of commerce as John Wanamaker admitted himself to be.

The truth about this publicity and advertising thing is that everybody lives upon it and by it, says Frank E. Marshall, general manager of the Gannett newspapers and publisher of the Elmira (N. Y.) Star-Gazette.

Auto Hosts One-Sixth as Great as U. S. Population

IT'S a far cry from the full skirts, wasp waists and leg o' mutton sleeves of twenty-two years ago, but we have traveled also a long way from the two-cylinder gas wagon of 1900 to the high-powered motors speeding over our highways today, declares the Stewart-Warner Safety Council.

A quarter of a century ago there was one automobile for every 9,500 people in the United States. Ten years ago there was one automobile for every 33 people, while today the motor population is one-sixth as large as the human population, or one car to every six people. This rapid growth has put the automobile as foremost among American industries, but it has also produced a fearful menace to the public, points out the Safety Council which has for its purpose the prevention of automobile accidents. A vigorous campaign of public education must be pushed if annual rate of automobile fatalities is to be reduced from 22,000.

TWENTY per cent more corn was produced in 1925 than in 1924, according to the corn survey of the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. An increased production of 587,836,000 bushels brings the 1925 figure to 2,900,581,000 bushels. This, plus the carry-over of 1924, makes the general marketable 1925 corn crop of 2,961,581,000 bushels the largest in five years. While the corn crop was nearly a failure in the Southwest and the average yield was low in almost the entire cotton belt, the corn belt itself, in practically all sections north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers, produced an excellent crop of fine quality.

The large excess production, however, and the fact that there is fewer live stock on the farms and some curtailment in feeding operations, have made corn plentiful and low in price. Prices dropped steadily from the top price in January of $1.32 to 82 cents in November in Chicago. Receipts fluctuated violently with an up-turn grade beginning in October.

The United States is the corn nation of the world, producing 70 per cent of the entire crop. New uses for corn promise to increase consumption of this grain appreciably. Particularly significant is the manufacture of corn sugar, which is increasing in commercial importance.

What America Cost

A Chicago authority offers facts to show that the first voyage of Columbus cost only $7,000 in terms of our present currency. Queen Isabella did not bear the whole cost, for two brothers, Martin and Vincente Pinzon, donated two vessels and considerable money to the expedition. Columbus drew a salary of 1500 pesetas, or $300 a year.

"SUPERGAS"

If a commodity is good and its use increases, the output of that commodity must be increased. Experience has demonstrated that one producer is usually incapable of furnishing an indispensable product in sufficient quantities. Recognition of this fact in the case of the electrical industry, led to the interconnection of power sources, or "superpower." The result was, increased service at reduced cost.

As with electricity, the use of gas has grown remarkably in industry and the home, and necessity now causes the gas industry to contemplate an interconnection of sources of supply similar to that inaugurated by the electric companies.

STOP PLAYING POLITICS

A movement has been started in the United States senate to curb the "habit of the senate" of embarking upon numerous investigations.

There is a feeling that congressional and senate investigations are in many instances largely for political effect, and that as such, they upset sound industrial conditions, with resulting loss and inconvenience to the public.

We have legal, judicial and regulatory departments of our government which should be capable of carrying on proper investigations and hearings where the facts warrant. Such duly authorized proceedings might not be as sensational in character as the "shows" the senate stages, but they would be as effective in getting results and far less expensive for the taxpayers.

PROTEST TO COUNCIL

ON M. B. SEA WALL COST

The protest of the Mission Beach improvement club against Mission Beach's paying the full cost of constructing a seawall at that beach, was sent to the city manager by the council last Monday for a report. The council already has ordered an assessment district created to tax all Mission Beach lots for the improvement, but the beach folks claim the city should share part of the cost as a general municipal improvement.

THOUGHTFULNESS

Are we loyal in our friendships?
Are we just in our judgments?
If we only knew the welcome cheer
Would find in some sad heart;
If we only guessed the longing on
Some other traveler's part;
If we knew the many trials, which Beset another's way,
We might strive to be more thoughtful,
Of the heedless things we say.

WE CIRCULATE

Pastel-Colored Wool Jersey
for Tots' Bloomer Frocks

If grownups have a flare to their frocks, why not those of little folks
as well? That is exactly what the designer of the little bloomer dress in the picture must have been thinking, too. For, sure enough, here it is, a circular flare cut, and isn't it just as cunning as cunning can be? Such a simple little bloomer frock it is, for the mother who sews a bit, to make for her child.

What this wee spring dress lacks in ornamentation it makes up for in color, for it is fashioned of wool jersey in oh! such a bright carrot shade.
Rose-blush, carrot, peppermint, nile,
pencil, and Italian blue, flamingo,
peach, oatmeal, maize and phantom red, and yet the list is not all told of colorings in which wool jersey is making its spring appearance. Those who create the mode are all enthusiasm
over this fabric for coats and dresses
for little folks.

SCHOOL DAYS

AN ABBREVIATED STORY

WAYS AND MANNERISMS

GREGORY POLKA, usually so unresponsive to women's charms, was forced to admit that Christine Wanderlust's many irresistible little ways had quite conquered him.

The cunning little way, for instance, in which she snatched her lips before beginning to speak.

And her adorable little way of wrinkling her nose like a rabbit to help her think.

And her appealing little way of saying "dear" for "dear" and "heal" for "here," etc.

And her charming little giggle.

Not to speak of her fascinating little way of blowing back the errant wisp of hair that insisted on straying from her forehead.

So, he married her.

It wasn't long before Gregory Polka discovered maddening little mannerisms about his wife that nearly drove him insane.

The irritating little mannerism, for instance, of snatching her lips before beginning to speak.

And her stupid little mannerism of wrinkling her nose like a rabbit to help her think.

And her affected little mannerism of saying "dear" for "dear" and "heal" for "here," etc.

And her asinine little giggle.

Not to speak of her annoying little mannerism of blowing back the untidy wisp of hair that always disfigured her forehead.

So he divorced her.

Mother's Cook Book

I find the great thing in this world is not so much where we stand as in what direction we are moving. You may set it down as a truth which admits of few exceptions, that those who ask your opinion really want your praise.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

FOOD FOR THE FAMILY

AT THIS time when we are asked to use much corn in our menus the following favorite recipe will be welcomed:

Corn Meal Muffins.

Cream together one-half cupful of butter, one-half cupful of sugar, then add two well-beaten eggs. Sift and mix one-half cupful each of white flour and corn meal, one and one-half teaspoonsful of baking powder and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Add the dry ingredients to the first mixture alternately with one cupful of milk. Beat all together well. Pour into hot greased muffin pans, filling them three-fourths full, and bake twenty-five minutes.

Chocolate Macaroons.

Grind two-thirds of a cupful of blanched almonds and grate three squares of chocolate. Beat the whites of three eggs until stiff. Fold into them the grated chocolate and the ground almonds, one-half cupful of sugar and three tablespoonsful of rice flour. Shape lightly into small balls and place on greased baking sheets. Bake for twenty minutes.

Tapoca Pudding.

Cook one tablespoonful of tapoca (the minute kind) in a pint of milk for 15 minutes. Dissolve a tablespoonful of gelatin in one-half cupful of water. Beat the yolk of two eggs, add one-fourth cupful of sugar and add to the tapoca. Combine mixtures and pour over stewed dried peaches and one-half of a banana, cut up. When cool stir in one-half cupful of whipped cream.

BEQUEATHED

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WHEN I pass over I bequeath
To other folks the wreaths they wreath.

And all the trappings of my gloom.
It's nice of you to drape the room;
And hang the crepe upon the door;
But I, as I remarked before,
Bequeath them all to all mankind.
Like other things I leave behind.

I leave behind a lot of things
That I won't need when I wear wings.
The hates, the jealousies, the spite,
The talking wrongs and claiming rights,
And wishing this and wanting that,
And other matters folks are at;
Yes, when I pass the portals pearly, Bequeath them to the well-known world.

And, while bequeathing here and there,
I leave you all the dentist's chair,
The strap to which I had to hang,
The bell the driver used to bang,
Umbrellas, gloves and overshoes,
And lots of things I used to use
That still I painfully recall—
To others I bequeath them all.

I leave the celebrated earth
A lot of things of doubtful worth:
The demagogue, the parlor pink,
The poets using purple ink,
The naughty books, the nasty plays—
Oh, I am happy lots of ways,
With lots of things I'm done, I'm through;
Now, folks, I leave them all to you!

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

OUR LITTLE JOURNEY

WITH all the improvements that have been made in recent years in the "art" of living, it is doubtful whether we can get as much out of life as did our forefathers.

They lived more in the open, saw the starry heavens at night, the sunsets and the sunrise, communed with nature until their spirits were attuned to the universe. They were unafraid of hardships, but cowards when it came to practicing deception.

Reverently appreciative of the divine hand that poured out its blessing upon them, they lived and worked by faith, which the men and women of the present era seem to consider
of slight use to them, often questioning its virtue.

We are said to be very brave and progressive.

The present generation is not contented anywhere, at home or abroad, constantly seeking adventure, roaming from place to place in quest of contentment and finding it not.

In the larger cities the love of home
and home surroundings is but a ghost of such a home-love as that exhibited
by Washington, Lincoln, McKinley and Roosevelt.

So, it would seem, that in one way or another, our modern mode of living, instead of building up homes, is strengthening them and bringing families and kin closer together, is forcing humans apart.

Where is to be found, except possibly in the rural districts, that stanch friendship which existed among neighbors only a little while ago?

Where is to be seen that fine, sympathetic love of noble women, who at the cry of a neighbor, would lay aside their own pressing duties to nurse the sick, or provide in winter food and raiment for the destitute.

In our little journey through life
are we in our pride, luxury and selfishness forgetting the first commandment, making gods of gold and bowing down to them and serving them?

Turning our back upon homes and home-uses, where are we going?

Town Planning Needs

Ability of High Order

There is little to be gained by attempting to determine whether the engineer, the architect, or the landscape architect is better fitted for the work of town planning. Each has his own peculiar advantages and limitations.
In this country, the landscape architect has taken a prominent part in town planning for two reasons: First,
the profession has had the good fortune for several generations of having a leading firm of gifted men, with high ideals of professional work and public service and a developed social sense, who in turn have trained many younger men.

"A second reason for the high place occupied by the landscape architect in town planning is the fact that the most complete course of specialized training in town planning offered by an American university is most closely related to the advanced technical courses and research work in landscape architecture. These courses of instruction, however, are equally open to engineers and architects, and have been taken by many men already well trained in these professions.

Town planning finally simmers down very largely to the relation between design and construction, and the methods by which design can be translated successfully into construction, keeping always in view the element of cost and the legal authority with which to proceed.

There must be wider training in design of those who have to do primarily with construction, and a larger experience in construction of those who have to do primarily with design. The town plan itself must show an orderly distribution of all its parts, with a nice regard for the practical requirements of each part, and its esthetic potentialities. And there must be foresight and vision as to what is involved in the social and civic life of the community in the execution of the plan.—Philadelphia Record.

Millions of Americans Are Owners of Homes

Fourteen million American families are home owners today. It is estimated by the Indiana Limestone Quarrymen's association in a survey showing the growth of the home-owning idea.

"America, perhaps rightfully tagged the most extravagant nation in the world, spends in one year the sum of nearly $3,000,000,000 for automobiles.
Its tobacco bill runs almost as high,
while candy, cakes, ice cream and the like consume another $2,000,000,000.
Yet with all this seeming disregard for the future the great enterprise of home-making is by no means overlooked," says the association.

"Residential building being approximately 60 per cent of the year's estimated $6,000,000,000 construction program, home-making is easily the biggest business of the country. Most convincing evidence of the stability
and strength of the American people,
despite their so-called pleasure extravagance, is the ever-growing influence of the more substantial type of dwelling."

Give Trees Protection

It is a known fact that trees and shrubbery enhance the beauty of almost any ordinary-sized building, yet it is surprising to see the utter lack of appreciation of this fact displayed
by a great many contractors.

When working on a job they made absolutely no effort to prevent growing things from being killed, with the result that there is not a live tree
left on the place when the job is done.

Trees are very easily killed by pilling rubbish about them or by knocking off the bark. If the builder will take care to see that these things are not done he will leave the premises
in such a condition that the trees will continue to bloom.

Winter Building Gains

Responses to a questionnaire sent out by the Department of Commerce show that the winter depression in construction is being gradually leveled out. During the last two years winter building has shown a decided increase over that of former years, which proves conclusively that the agitation in behalf of year-round construction is producing definite results.
Investigation and experience have shown that except in the most northern sections and during extreme weather, work can go ahead about as rapidly and profitably as in summer.

Brick's Great Value

Brick is the material that succeeds,
as few others can, in adapting itself
to the wants of the man with good taste and a moderate income. In the house built on a proper plan it suggests all the qualities that should be associated with the word "home," permanency, hospitality, warmth, comfort, beauty. And brick has that rare and wonderful characteristic which is said to distinguish the elect among woman-kind—it grows old beautifully.

Time to Plant Trees

Long winter evenings are the time

grounds. The man who plants a tree

SPRING AFTERNOON FROCKS; FLOWER COLORING IN HATS

SHEER and colorful are many of spring's prettiest frocks. It is a thought most gratifying that materials have been brought to such a point of perfection that, while they are sheer and dainty, they are also practical and utilitarian. Notwithstanding the fact of their exquisiteness and sheerness, they wear and wear and wear. No wonder that any and every descendant of the crepe or georgette family is again very popular. There is crepe Louise, for instance, which is heralded as a most fashionable material for the spring frock; it can trace its ancestry direct to the family tree of georgettes. Its sheerness is its charm, accented this season with wondrous tones and tints, for every rainbow hue from lightest pastel to strong vivid shades is represented in the newest georgettes and crepes.

One of the popular shades anticipated for spring is tarragon green. This is the color of the frock of crepe choose to best follow the fashion? First and foremost buy a green hat, either love-bird, chartreuse or almond. Next in popularity comes rose, be it bois de rose or any allied shade. Blue, both bright and copenhagen, finds favor, with wild honey and gray in very pronounced favor. Thus through their gay flower colorings, do these inexpensive first-of-the-season champagne foreshadow the coming of spring.

Here is a very good argument in favor of acquiring more than one of these gaily colored felts. Now that silk print frocks of multi-coloring are the fashion, no matter which hat you wear, it will be sure to enter into the general color scheme, and there you have it, a different color ensemble for every occasion, and at not much expense at that.

The gigolo crown promises to be popular. The orchid felt hat shown at the center left in this group carries this new crown, also the brim turns

Louise which is here pictured. The narrow flouncings arranged in tiers across the front demonstrate how gracefully this fabric yields to cunning treatment. Each of these shallow, flat ruffles is hemstitched with gold thread. There is a bouquet of flowers embroidered in thistle coloring on the front of the waist with a further touch of the ornate in the fluttering bows of orchid ribbon which tie the wrist bands of the sleeves. That thistle tones and orchid be combined with green in this smart afternoon frock expresses the new color tendency, which is to use contrasting shades together for greater effectiveness.

Lace, dyed to match the diaphanous georgettes and crepes, is used for yoke effects, godets and circular inset flares. Very smart, too, are georgette and taffeta frocks, the latter applied in a trimming way in the form of flounces, borders and for many intriguing details.

For practical wear black, henna, navy and dark green are favorite shades, while for dressier occasions entrancing pastel colors prevail.

With the increasing popularity of sheer frocks, the costume underslip gains in importance. Transparent dress tops and sleeves depend for charm in appearance greatly on the perfection in coloring and fit of the slip underneath.

It is a clever idea to own two, or three slips for the same frock. A dark underslip should be acquired for practical wear, and for elaborate ef-up at the back, which is quite proper for it to do. The latest thing for midday's spring hat is green bangkok with a felt brim, as illustrated at the bottom to the right in the picture. The top hats accent youthful off-the-face brims.

Handpainted felt hats are very interesting and exceedingly smart this season. Very lovely color schemes are worked out, such as, for instance, orchids or violets on a pastel blue felt, or daisies and buttercups on a gray

fect the metal cloth slip is charming. Under plain chiffon dresses gay print silk slips are very effective.

There is a new fad on in the realm of fashion, and it has to do with perky, colorful little felt hats. It is the vogue for the immediate moment, to own at least two and even as many as three or four cunning felts, each in one of the newest delightful colors. To carry out the idea, there must be a boutonniere to match each hat. Some like the single large chrysanthemum, others prefer a quaint bouquet of wee flowers, while still others favor a metallic rose or bud.

Recoiling? Try planning a gay collar-let on your somber fur coat collar-let this with a cunningly draped and manipulated hat of exotic coloring and let your mirror answer the question.

Now just what color would one background. Futurist and conventional motifs vie with floral patternings.

Scarves in solid color to match the felt or bangkok hat is fashion's latest whim. Is your most becoming color old rose? Then have hat and scarf exact match shade with, as before suggested, a boutonniere to complete the ensemble.

PLAN OUTLINED FOR THAWING FROZEN PIPES

Thawing a Frozen Pipe.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The middle of a frozen pipe should never be thawed first, says the United States Department of Agriculture, because expansion of the water confined by ice on both sides may burst the pipe. When thawing a water pipe, work toward the supply, opening a faucet to show when the flow starts. When thawing a waste or sewer pipe, work upward from the lower end to permit the water to drain away.

Simple and Effective.

Applying boiling water or hot cloths to a frozen pipe is simple and effective. When there is no danger of fire a torch or burning newspapers run back and forth along the frozen pipe, gives quick results. Underground or otherwise inaccessible pipes may be thawed as follows: Open the frozen water pipe on the house end. Insert one end of a small pipe or tube. With the aid of a funnel at the other end of the small pipe pour boiling water into it and push it forward as the ice melts. A piece of rubber tubing may be used to connect the funnel to the thaw pipe. Hold the funnel higher than the frozen pipe, so that the hot water has head and forces the cooled water back to the opening.

where it may be caught in a pail. The head may be increased and the funnel may be more conveniently used if an elbow and a piece of vertical pipe are added to the outer end of the thaw pipe, as shown. Add more thaw pipe at the outer end until a passage is made through the ice. Withdraw the thaw pipe quickly after the flow starts. Do not stop the flow until the thaw pipe is fully removed and the frozen pipe is cleared of ice. A small force pump is often used instead of a funnel and is much to be preferred for opening a long piece of pipe. If available, a jet of steam may be used instead of hot water; being hotter, it is more rapid.

Traps and Waste Pipes.

Frozen traps and waste pipes are sometimes thawed by pouring in caustic soda or lye, obtainable at grocery stores for about 25 cents per pound. Chemicals of this character should be labeled "Poison" and should be kept where children cannot get them. To prevent freezing, the water in the traps of a vacant house should be removed during cold weather and the traps should be filled with kerosene, crude glycerin, or a very strong brine made of common salt and water.

PECTIN EXTRACTS IN FRUIT JELLIES

Can Be Made in Winter and Used Later in Spring.

Certain fruit juices make good jellies, while others are not commonly considered suitable for jelly-making. Sugar, acid and pectin must be present in fairly definite proportions for the formation of a jelly. Fruit juices that do not "jell" are usually low in acid or pectin, or both. It is possible to supply acid in the form of lemon juice, and pectin by means of home-made pectin extracts from apples or the white peel of oranges and lemons.

The use of these pectin extracts in small, measured amounts has several advantages. They can be made during the winter and used later in the spring or summer. They enable one to make good jelly from such fruits as raspberries, strawberries, peaches, pears, cherries, rhubarb, and others which are often low in natural pectin. They shorten the cooking time of juices which frequently must be concentrated before they can be used for jelly-making. In making jam from these fruits with the addition of pectin, the cooking time is so shortened that the jam has a flavor more nearly like that of the fresh fruit, and the number of glasses obtained is somewhat greater than when the jam must be cooked for a long time.

Most of the pectin extracts are lacking in pronounced flavor, and do not greatly modify the natural flavor of the fruits to which they are added. The choice of apples or citrus fruits for making pectin extracts is largely a matter of local convenience and expense, although if it is desired to make these extracts in the winter and store them for use during the later season, apple pectin extracts are preferable. They can be bottled directly after making, whereas the citrus pectin extract, which does not keep so well, must be processed in a hot-water bath if it is to be stored. Gill-size containers are desirable to prevent waste when only a small amount of pectin extract is required at jelly-making time.

Pectin extracts should be used only with rich, full-flavored fruits which are deficient in natural pectin or which require concentrating before making jelly. They should never be used to conceal the inferiority of watered juices. Detailed directions for making and using pectin extracts may be obtained from the United States Department of Agriculture.

Care of Milk

No matter how well milk has been handled up to the time it is delivered to the consumer, it cannot be expected to keep well if it is then carelessly treated. Milk should be kept clean, covered, and cool; these three points consumer as well as producer should never disregard.

Milk for Babies

The milk for babies should be the purest obtainable, and should be cared for scrupulously after it is delivered.

Suggestion for Italian Rice and Chicken Dish

From the Italians comes the suggestion for a rice and chicken dish which is both savory and economical. In fact, it is an excellent way of extending the favor of a small quantity of left-over chicken into a substantial dish for another meal. The carcass of a cold roast fowl or bony pieces left from the first serving of chicken fricassee can be used in this way. The United States Department of Agriculture gives the following directions for making "rizotto" which is sure to appeal to American palates.

Pick the meat from the bones of the left-over cooked chicken and stew the bones for enough water to make a quart of broth, adding any left-over gravy or sauce that will furnish flavor. In a large skillet cook slowly in two tablespoonfuls of butter an onion which has been minced finely, but do not let the onion brown. To this add the quart of chicken broth and when it boils up rapidly sprinkle in slowly three-fourths cupful of rice which has been washed free of surface starch. Cover the skillet and allow the rice to simmer in the broth for about twenty-five minutes, or until the grains swell and become soft. Shake the skillet from time to time to keep the rice from sticking, but do not stir it unless absolutely necessary. By the time the rice is done it will have absorbed practically all the broth and the grains will be large and separate. Then add the small pieces of chicken which were picked from the bones, turn the mixture onto a platter and sprinkle it generously with grated cheese. The Italians use Parmesan cheese, but any of the American varieties hard enough to grate will be satisfactory. Mushrooms, either fresh or canned, are also an excellent addition.

Pressed Lamb or Mutton Is Delicious for Lunch

The cooking of the tender cuts of lamb or mutton is a simple process, usually consisting of a quick searing of the outside by intense heat, followed by cooking it in its own juice after the heat has been reduced. In utilizing the tougher cuts the connective tissue must be softened by simmering or divided by grinding into small pieces, as in making hashes, meat loaf, croquettes, or mutton sausages.

A good use for the cuts usually stewed is suggested by the United States Department of Agriculture. Simmer the head, neck and other ragged pieces of lamb in a small amount of salted water until the meat falls from the bones. The lamb liver may be included, although this is tender and delicate and equal to other good liver when sliced and fried. When the meat is cool remove the bones and excess fat, add a little lemon juice and other seasoning to taste, and chop or grind the meat. Dissolve a tablespoon of plain gelatin in one cup of the liquor from the saucepan and pour it over the meat. Mix well, place in a suitable mold, and put in a cold place. When the jelly is set it may be cut in slices and served. It is especially suitable for a lunch or supper dish.

New Scientific Light

on Plant Intelligence

An intoxicated carrot has convinced Sir Jagadis Chandra Bose, the British plant physiologist, that plants have intelligence.

Sir Jagadis is more than ever convinced that trees fall in love just as human beings do, as a result of his latest experiments. The intelligence of plants, he says, approaches the instinctive intelligence of the lower forms of animals. He bases his conclusions on observation of the injection of alcohol, chloroform, carbonic acid and other chemicals into living plants. He also has looked into arboreal amours on the spot.

Trees apparently select other trees nearby as objects of affection, Sir Jagadis said in an interview. Trees thus smitten send out tendrils to enfold the objects of their affection.

By injections, Sir Jagadis said he was able to make a carrot drunk or to make it lose consciousness. Plant fibers really are muscles, he contends.

Raw Diamonds Not Costly

Diamonds are sold at an average price of $16 a carat at the mines in South Africa, while purchasers pay from fifteen to twenty times as much for the cut gem in this country. The rarity of fine stones, an expert says, is but one factor in the high price. The great amount of high-grade labor expended to turn the raw stone into a finished gem is the main item.

The cutting process involves the constant risk of spoiling the entire stone. A first step consists in cleaving the specimen with the grain and requires great care and skill. Small ends are recent into brilliants, while the gem itself is faceted on top and bottom.

The next process involves the lapping of the remaining facets, which requires more time than the cutting and causes the stone to lose from one to two-thirds of its weight.—Popular Mechanics.

BANKERS SURVEY STATE BANK LAWS

Find That Movement for State Guaranty of Bank Has Gone Into Eclipse.

New York.—A survey of state banking laws conducted by the State Bank Division of the American Bankers Association shows marked progress toward greater uniformity and more efficient bank supervision, it is declared by Frank W. Simmonds, in charge of the division, in a statement giving the results of the investigation. He says that the movement for state guaranty of bank deposits appears to have gone into eclipse.

"The division has urged that the office of bank commissioner be freed from politics and all other functions of state government and tenure be made more secure with sufficient compensation and discretion to attract men of outstanding ability," Mr. Simmonds says. "Gratifying progress has been made during the past year in important bank legislation in many states. Idaho, Wyoming and Oregon led the list by adopting entirely new modern banking codes, while Texas and Montana have new codes in preparation.

Uniformity Among State Laws

"The survey shows that it is generally agreed there should be a high degree of uniformity among the states in laws dealing with certain fundamental principles of bank organization, regulation and supervision, and that there is a strong tendency in this direction. We find a very definite trend toward increasing the minimum capital requirements of banks to $25,000; creation of banking boards to act in an advisory capacity with the state bank commissioner, and legislation empowering bank commissioners to take complete charge of insolvent banks and to liquidate them as distinguished from liquidation through the courts.

"We find also a trend toward legislation providing for closer supervision and regulation of building and loan associations; more equitable taxation of bank stock; legislation providing for merger, conversion or consolidation of banking institutions; the legalizing and regulating of what is known as 'departmental banking'; broadening the field for investment of funds of saving banks and trust companies, and increasing the power of the bank commissioner as to granting or denying charters for new banks, and authorizing his making reasonable rules and regulations governing bank management and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof.

"Additional general characteristics of state bank legislation are for increasing the compensation of the bank commissioner and lengthening his term of office of four, five or six years, with power to appoint necessary deputies and examiners; legislation providing for the reduction of mandatory bank calls to three and reducing the number of examinations required by law annually to one; making issuance of worthless checks a misdemeanor; limiting or prohibiting an officer or director of a bank borrowing from his bank unless his collateral is approved by a majority of the board of directors, and limiting or prohibiting the opening of branch banks.

Eclipse of Guaranty Movement

"The question of state guaranty of bank deposits appears this year to have passed into an eclipse, so far as the extension of the idea is concerned, notwithstanding the fact that state guaranty laws were recommended by the governors of two states, and bills were introduced in several of the states, all of which were defeated. The general tendency, so far as state guaranty of deposits laws are concerned, is distinctly the other way, the indications being that several states now having guaranty laws are trying to free themselves from this legislation. Oklahoma has abandoned the plan of state guaranty of deposits, and this year the South Dakota legislature has repealed the state guaranty law and has referred the repeal to the people at the next general election for ratification."

BANKERS RAISE FUND OF $500,000 FOR EDUCATION

A fund of $500,000 to endow scholarships and research in economics in American colleges was recently established by the American Bankers Association in celebration of its Golden Anniversary. The intention of the Foundation is to promote education in the direction of sounder general economic understanding. Half the total sum represents subscriptions by the American Bankers Association, the American Institute of Banking and individual bankers, and the other half quotas assigned to bankers in each state. The Association gave $50,000 from its reserve funds, and the American Institute of Banking, through individual subscriptions from its members, who are chiefly clerks in the banks, subscribed $25,000. Numerous subscriptions of $5,000, $2,500 and $1,000 each were made by individual bankers in all parts of the country.

HUGE GROWTH IN SCHOOL SAVINGS

New York.—School savings in the United States for the year 1924-1925 increased in aggregate bank balances by $5,500,000, with a growth of 630,000 in the total number of pupils participating. It is shown in reports made to the American Bankers Association, which declares that the returns encourage belief in the permanence of school savings as a part of the educational program in the public schools.

During the year the number of reporting school savings systems increased from 633 in 742 districts to 760 in 1,557 districts, the number of pupils participating from 2,236,326 to 2,869,497, the deposits from $14,991,535.40 to $16,961,560.72 and the bank balances from $20,435,144.64 to $25,913,431.15, says W. E. Albright, in charge of the Association's savings activities.

Since 1920, the first year for which comprehensive statistics are available, the number of schools having school savings banking has increased, 27.14 per cent, the enrollment in school savings districts 27.9 per cent, participants 52.2 per cent, deposits 50.1 per cent and bank balances 51.8 per cent.

SUCCESS IN AMERICA AN OPEN HIGHWAY

How Four Boys of Humble Origin Have Become Chiefs of the Greatest Financial Organization in the World.

Broad highways of achievement are wide open to all in America no matter how humble their beginning. It is brought out by a writer in Forbes Magazine, telling of the successive elevation of poor boys to the chieftainship of the most powerful association of financial power in the world.

"Nowhere is opportunity so democratic as in caste-free America, nowhere is recognition for faithful service so little conditioned by inherited position and wealth," the article says. "The bounty of America in bestowing her rewards of great success upon those of modest origin is again notably manifest in the rise of Oscar Wells to the presidency of the American Bankers Association.

"The son of a tanner," John H. Puelicher, was elected to this eminence in 1922. Circumstances ended his public schooling in the seventh year and he went to work in a carpet store in Milwaukee. At sixteen he entered a bank as a clerk, rising step by step until he became president. Recognition of his abilities as a banker and civic service through public education in sound economic understanding brought him the highest reward from his profession.

"A former country school teacher, Walter W. Head, born in a farm hamlet in Western Illinois, was elected president of the association in 1923. He gave up teaching and a salary of $75 to enter banking at $40 a month in a small Missouri town. He subsequently became president of a bank in Omaha, the largest in Nebraska and a dozen neighboring states. The position he occupied in advancing agricultural welfare during the period of depression led to his being called the 'Granger President of the American Bankers Association.'

"From Irish immigrant lad to supreme head of banking in America epitomizes the career of William E. Knox, president of one of the largest savings banks of the country in New York. His business career began as an office boy in a publishing house, and he later entered the bank as a clerk. Experience with humble people in their problems of personal finance and his inculcation of economy in all matters attracted country-wide attention.

"Oscar Wells, who rises in 1925 as successor of these men, was born in an old weather-boarded log cabin house in the Missouri River bottoms of Platte County, Missouri. He became an orphan when three years of age, losing his parents in an epidemic that ravaged the countryside. He passed under the care of an uncle, head of a small country bank in Platte City, a town of a few hundred inhabitants, growing up on a farm and receiving his early education in a rural school. He later entered Bethany College, West Virginia, but at the end of his junior year he had to quit college and go to work in the bank."

His subsequent career was one of steady progress, first to higher positions among small country banks, then to larger city banks in Texas, where he rose to the top. In 1914 he was chosen first governor of the Dallas Federal Reserve Bank and served through the opening period of the establishment of that institution. He resigned to become president of a bank in Birmingham, Alabama, which has grown under his administration to be one of the largest and most successful institutions in the South.

IT'S A FACT

THAT advertising is the best force to use in order to attract attention to your business.

THAT continuous advertising is the power that brings steady business.

THAT only the continuous advertisers take the lead in the business world. Non-advertisers simply lag behind, little known and soon forgotten.

THAT it is a well known fact that business comes where it is invited and stays where it is well treated. If you don't invite business by advertising you should not expect much of it.

THAT business concerns that advertise reap the favor and confidence of the public.

THAT business concerns that invite business by truthful advertising grow in popularity.

IT COSTS LESS TO SELL ADVERTISED GOODS. TRYING TO SELL GOODS WITHOUT THE AID OF ADVERTISING MEANS LOST TIME, LOST EFFORT AND LOST MONEY.
